SIS NEWS

Menzies Roof leaks again. New leaks in the past week, hopefully will be fixed as part of the current project.

Academic Board. A particular focus for the meeting was strategic plan. Topics for discussion included:

- Report on the Ministerial announcement on higher education funding, including issues from the perspective of universities, students and potential students
- Overview of ARC Impact and Engagement Pilot Framework and review of Joint Colleges of Science
- Policy incubator and public policy and societal impact hub, Director position now advertised
- Student Admission
- Hot Topic: Strengthening Student Engagement
- digital disruption: what does ANU education need to do to support government in navigating social, cultural and economic changes.

Copyright

- Further consultation on copyright safe harbour legislation – last week the Government announced it will undertake further consultation with stakeholders on the extension of the Copyright Act prior to introducing legislation. "Dr Heather Smith PSM, Secretary of the Department of Communications and the Arts, will oversee a series of meetings and roundtable discussions with stakeholders on the proposed changes. The Department has been asked to provide advice to Government by early June 2017 to enable the Government to continue to progress the copyright reform process"
- Copyright Agency diverts funds meant for authors to $15m fighting fund – article by Peter Martin

CAUL

- CAUL executive met this week – discussions included the coming announcements from Minister Birmingham, next CAUL conference, developing/changing the CAUL structure to implement the recommendations made at the September CAUL meeting

Time to reconsider big deals. As serial prices continue to grow we are reviewing all purchases including the big deals (or indeed the medium and small deals). There are several we will review closely for cancellation and move to selected title subscriptions. Rick Andersen has investigated a small number of US university libraries and finds that some are walking away from the big deals of the likes of Wiley, J&F, Springer and SAGE.

Deals changing - Elsevier & Taylor Francis. Fascinating times - Louisiana State University is suing Elsevier "for breach of contract resulting from the publisher's exclusion of the LSU School of Veterinary Medicine from accessing content licensed by the LSU Libraries". Université de Montréal has just announced "deconstruction" of its Francis and Taylor Big Deal.

Bibliometrics. On 12 May at ANU Menzies Library, Dr Anthony Dona, Solutions Consultant at Clarivate Analytics, is delivering a free one-day workshop on research impact. There are four sessions that explore different research impact tools, including Web of Science, InCites, Journal Citation Reports, Researcher ID and ORCID. Register for the full day or choose your sessions at Research Impact Training ANU.

It Takes a Village: Of Journals Requiring ORCID IDs. Alice Meadows analysis is useful for us all to read – "robust and appropriate tools and services, widely used and adopted, reduce the administrative burden on researchers, enabling them to maximize the time they spend on research. But creating those tools and services is just the beginning; getting researchers to adopt and use them, and to understand the benefits of doing so, is often the real challenge...".
